

Body Language

What body language tells you that someone likes you?

What body language tells you that someone doesn't like you?

What body language tells you that someone isn't trustworthy?

Do you think you're good at lying or do you betray it through your body language?

What are some signs that someone is trying to dominate you while talking to you?

Is it possible to control our body language effectively?

Do you make a conscious effort to suppress your body language in public? What do you try to suppress?

Do you think that you're good at telling what someone's thinking from their body language?

If someone is crossing their arms while you speak what do you think that means?

If someone scratches their neck while talking to you what do you think that means?

If someone preens their hair while talking to you what do you think that means?