

Intelligence and Ability

Do you consider yourself to be an intelligent person?

Are you especially good at any particular subject or skill?

How were your grades at school? Did you excel at certain subjects?

Who is the most intelligent person you know? How are they smart?

Do you think that academic success usually reflects intelligence?

Do you think working hard or intelligence is more importance to success in life?

What is the difference between intelligence and wisdom? Do you think they are related?

Do you think intelligence and happiness are related or not?

Do you consider yourself to be 'street smart'?

Do you think it is better to have a high IQ or to be 'street smart'?

Do you think IQ tests are a good way to measure a person's intelligence or do they tend to favour people who are good at maths?

Do you agree with the theory of multiple intelligences? (That is, intelligence is not dominated by a single general ability but is formed by different types of intelligence, such as visual-spatial ability, musical sensitivity and interpersonal skills.)

Would you prefer to have good looks or a high IQ?
